Multiple authors: List up to 6 authors by last names, followed by initials. Use an ampersand (&) instead of the word “and”:

More than 6 authors: List first 6 authors then the phrase et al.

Editor or editors and no author: Lounsberry, G., & Foreman, J. (Eds.). (1999).

Basic format for books

New York: Oxford University Press.

- Author is followed by year of publication.
- Title of item is italicized (underlined if handwritten.)
- Capitalize only proper names.
- Follow by place of publication and publisher.
- Citation is double spaced and indented as shown.

Material from an edited book (such as a reference book)

Article from a library database (no DOI “Digital Object Identifier”)

- Author is followed by year of publication. If there is no author, list by title and then year of publication.
- Capitalize only proper names in the title of article.
- Italicize title of publication and volume number. In this case there is no issue number.
- Include the page numbers for the article.
- If there is no DOI indicate database where article was retrieved.

Article from a library database with a D.O.I.

- Author is followed by year of publication. If there is no author, list by title and then year of publication.
- Capitalize only proper names in the title of article.
- Italicize title of publication and volume number. In this case the issue number is in parentheses and is not italicized.
- Include the page numbers for the article.
- Add the DOI at the end of the citation.
